Writing and Composition

Grade Level: 11
Subject: English
Number of Lessons: 12
Duration of Lessons: 80 minutes

Global Rationale

I am responsible for teaching a unit on writing and composition. During this unit, I think it is important to provide students with the opportunity to write in as many mediums as possible. Therefore, at the beginning of each lesson, students will be asked to keep a journal, in response to some relia that I bring to class. It is my hope that the students will be inspired by the variety of media that I make available to them. I also hope to introduce them to a variety of journal writing techniques.

In addition to journal writing, I will also introduce the five-paragraph essay. Although students may be somewhat familiar with this model, I will be focusing, in-depth, on the various elements of the essay: audience, voice, thesis statement, introduction, topic sentences, transitions and conclusion. Students should have a solid understanding of all of these elements so that they may apply these elements to their future essays. I will also introduce different essay genres: narrative, expository, argumentative and persuasive. Once they know the purpose behind each genre, they will be able to use these genres effectively in their upcoming essays. To demonstrate their understanding, students will write a five-paragraph, persuasive essay. By doing so, students will be able to demonstrate their ability to write effectively, for a specific audience.
Finally, students will be responsible for keeping a “Learning Log.” At the end of each lesson, students will reflect on what they have learned and any questions they still might have.

The following are prescribed learning outcomes, taken from the BC Ministry of Education, pertaining to this unit of study.

It is expected that students will:

- make connections between the ideas and information presented to them in literary and mass media works and their own experiences.
- use a variety of planning strategies to generate and access ideas
- demonstrate a willingness to take a tentative stance, tolerate ambiguity, explore multiple perspectives and consider more than one interpretation.
- support their opinions.
- use appropriate formats.
- adjust their form, style, tone and language to suit specific audiences.
- clarify and focus their topics to suit their purposes and audiences
- synthesize information and ideas that are appropriate to their purpose, media and audiences
- apply various strategies to generate and shape ideas
- assess their own and others’ work for sentence clarity, precision of language use, and variety and artistry of expression
- use appropriate criteria to critique and appraise their own and others’ ideas, use of language, and presentation forms, taking into consideration the purposes of the communications
- demonstrate a willingness to accept and provide constructive criticism and feedback to improve the clarity, meaning and style of their communications.
- demonstrate pride and satisfaction in using language to create and express ideas and personal viewpoints
- create a variety of academic, technical and personal communications, including multi-genre presentations, articles, formal reports, advertising and persuasive materials, resumes and research papers.

TOPIC: Writing & Composition: WORD CHOICE

OBJECTIVES: To create an environment wherein students will be able to write fluidly.
To have students think critically about word choice

SWBAT: Determine the difference between connotation and denotation Provide examples of denotative and connotative language
Change words into emotionally laden or neutral language

The 5 Paragraph Essay - Outline

Topic: Poverty

Narrow the Topic

a. Homeless people in Vancouver
b. Sponsoring a child
   c. Welfare
   d. Tax cuts for poor people
e. The B.C. economy

Introduction

General Statements: Hundreds of millions of children live in desperate poverty worldwide. Without help, these children have no hope for the future. Present natural disasters and wars are making the situation worse.

Thesis Statement: Sponsoring a child in a third world country is an easy way to help stop the tragedy of poverty.

Body of Essay

Subtopics (Topic Sentences):

Sponsorship helps a child in many different ways.

You receive letters and school progress reports from your child.

It is very cheap to sponsor a child.

Details:

Clean drinking water; system of agriculture for small villages; education; health care

The sponsor organization sends you its tax report; the child’s school sends you letters and report cards; you get news reports from your child’s village

Costs fifteen dollars Canadian a month; the price of one meal in a restaurant or several trips to the 7-11; most people do not even notice the difference

Conclusion

Concluding Statements: In conclusion, sponsoring a child in Guatemala has given me a lot of joy, and it has helped give my sponsor child and his family a better life and hope for the future.

Final Thoughts: I do not even miss the very small amount of money that it costs to give so much help to my sponsor child.

ESSAY-WRITING PROCESS

The key to a good essay is CLARITY and FOCUS. To achieve this, you need to:

Say What You Are Going to Say (Thesis); Say It (Body, with Topic Sentences and supporting information); Then Say It Again (Conclusion).

1) ANALYZE THE QUESTION

   a) Read the question and break down its parts - what is it asking of you? (Is it asking HOW? WHY? WHAT? to DESCRIBE? to EXPLAIN? to COMPARE? Etc.)

   b) What are the Key / Important words?

   (Is it asking you to compare and contrast two things? What are these two things? What are their similarities (to compare them) and differences (to contrast them)?)

   c) What do you need or want to prove?

   For example - “To what extent are dogs better pets than cats?” can be approached by arguing for dogs as better pets (OR) cats as better pets. If you choose dogs as better pets, you should provide examples / evidence of why you hold this opinion (i.e. they are more friendly, they are more loyal, etc.) and how your evidence relates back to your thesis. However, in a “to what extent” question, there should also be some mention of reasons why people might choose the opposite opinion.

2) BRAINSTORM

   a) Once you have determined what the question is asking - BRAINSTORM EXAMPLES/IDEAS from the text (story).

   b) Brainstorm examples for both sides of question (i.e. positives and negatives, all of the possible angles to the question)

   • evidence: events; what characters said, did, did not do, observations of the narrator

3) EVIDENCE

   a) Once you have your brainstormed list, make sure you have specific examples from the story to back up your ideas

   • go through book, find quotes, page numbers for specific examples of scenes
4) Thesis - Central, Controlling Idea

a) What do you want to argue as the main point/idea of your essay?
   • i.e. - do you want to argue that there are more negatives than positives, or that there are an equal amount of both, etc.

5) Outline

a) Introduction - Includes Thesis, opening remarks.

b) Body - 3-4 paragraphs
   • Choose 3-4 examples from the novel to back up your thesis - 1 paragraph each.
   • Explain WHY/HOW these scenes/quotes from the book relate to your argument/prove your case (point).
   • Write TOPIC SENTENCES for each paragraph - main point of the paragraph.
   • Don’t forget to devote a paragraph to the other side of the argument/issue if it is called for in the question (To what extent).

c) Conclusion
   • Summarize the main points from the body of the essay and how they support your thesis.

6) Rough Draft

a) Write your rough draft based on your outline.

7) Edit

Questions to keep in mind while editing:

a) Correct spelling and grammar? (i.e. Verb Tense agreement? Active Voice?)

b) Did I answer all elements of the question? (Key words, showed both sides of issue/opinion?)

c) Do I have a clear thesis?

d) Do I have clear topic sentences?

e) Do I have good examples to back up my argument?

f) Have I explained my points/argued my point of view effectively and clearly?

g) Have I gone off topic (digressed)?

h) Are my quotes directly relevant to my points? Have I included page numbers after quotes?

i) Do I have any short sentences that have ideas that go with another sentence? (Then combine them!)

j) Have I used several words to describe something when one or two words will do? (Then try to use more precise/concise words).

k) Does my essay follow some sort of logical order? Do I jump back and forth between ideas?

8) Good Draft - Final Copy

a) Write your good copy with revisions!!
